About

My passion is the practical aid computers can bring to everyday people. I design and build systems that real users (accountants, sales teams, industrial engineers) depend on, focusing on usability, accessibility and removing the intimidation complex software often creates. The goal is always the same: make technology feel ... more

Happy New Year, LinkedIn community!
As 2026 begins, I'm thrilled to share that I've recently made a big move to beautiful North Carolina — a fresh start in a vibrant state full of opportunity, warm people, and that perfect mix of southern charm and tech momentum.

This move coincides perfectly with my renewed commitment: to establish a solid foothold in the software engineering industry this year. I'm all in — diving deep into building projects, sharpening my skills (full-stack, cloud, and everything in between), contributing to open source, and soaking up every learning opportunity I can find.
